

EDGERTON COUNCIL NOT TO APPEAL IN THE STRICKER CASE

Case of Edgerton Dealers' Sale of Liquor to Woman, in Which Judge
Grimm Declared Ordinance
Void, Settled by Council.

Edgerton, June 21.—The city council met last night in regular session and while much business was done, the only matter of importance acted upon was the case of the city against Stricker Bros., on which an appeal from the circuit court decision to the supreme court had been ordered, was ordered withdrawn.

Stricker Bros. were tried for violation of the city ordinance—that of selling a case of beer to a woman—and Judge Grimm decided that portion of the ordinance forbidding the sale to women, to be void. The matter in question has been pending before the council for some time and heavy taxpayers of the city who were against the problem of appealing the case to the supreme court, got together, circulated a petition and presented it to the city council for consideration. Thus, the matter is squelched forever.

CIRCUS ROUBABOUT A BROTHER OF PUGLIS?

Man Arrested By Police Last Night
Claimed To Be Brother of Pugley McFarland.

Officers last evening took in charge a man named McFarland, one of the roughs employed by the Barnum & Bailey show, who had inebriated a little too freely. The man was taken to the station and locked up, but released in order that he might go with the circus to Rockford. McFarland claimed to be a brother of Pugley McFarland, the well known pugilist.

Yesterday was an unusually quiet day for a circus day, the number of drunks being far below the average. A number of accumulations of small packages, but few were dangerous and those who had liggered at the bar too long were for the most part able to take care of themselves or were looked after by friends. Only three were looked up by the police and those were later released and sent out of town.

TURF AS BUILDING MATERIAL

Solid Walls and Flights of Steps of Living Green Grass Seen at Harford, Conn.

The possibilities of turf construction, both for ornamental and utilitarian purposes, may be seen in the sunken garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., which was designed and executed under the supervision of George A. Parker, superintendent of parks.

In this garden there are terraces, retaining walls, flights of steps (one of them 30 feet wide), paths, parterres and other architectural features, all made of living turf.

The technique of constructing a turf retaining wall is similar to that of laying bricks in building a brick wall.

Stout turfs cut 12 by 16 inches and about two inches thick were used to build the turf walls in the sunken garden above described. On a foundation layer of about two feet thick the turfs were piled up one layer upon another, each layer being tied in by means of leaders and runners so that as the turfs grow they will interweave and interlock.

All cracks and crevices where the pieces of turf join were filled in with smaller pieces of turf, says Country Life in America, and each layer pounded into place with a tamper and leveled off.

It is impossible to build an absolutely perpendicular wall of turf, because it is essential that the outer edge of each layer of turf protrude slightly beyond the edge of the layer above it. It is on this protruding portion of the turfs that the grass grows, which will cover the outside of the wall with a carpet of living green.

The minimum lateral inclination of these turf walls from the bottom upward is about three inches to the foot.

There is one instance of a turf retaining wall 600 feet long and from 15 to 20 feet high. The site of it was formerly a ragged, unkempt bank at the mercy of every rainstorm. It seemed as if the only way to keep the dirt from washing into the roadway beneath was to build an expensive stone retaining wall. The turf retaining wall was finally built, and it has served its purpose adequately for over a year. The wall is built in two tiers, one about half the height of the other and sloping up to it so as to act as a buttress.

An average of about ten cents a cubic foot is what Mr. Parker estimated that a finished sod wall would cost, but of course this would vary greatly according to local conditions. The cost of a stone wall varies from 25 cents to a dollar a cubic foot, so that from these rough estimates it may be seen that the cost of turf construction is probably less than half that of stone construction.

A Famous Beauty.

The princess of Pleas, the beautiful daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Cornwalls West, and a sister of the duchess of Westminister, is counted among the beauties of international fame. No sooner had she been presented at court than Prince Henry of Pleas, whose family is among the oldest and most aristocratic of the Prussian nobility, claimed her as his bride, and their marriage was one of the events of 1891.

Tall and dazzlingly fair, the princess was popularly accounted the loveliest girl seen in English society since the days of the Gunpowder, and her appearance in public was rendered somewhat embarrassing owing to the openly expressed admiration of the crowd. Like her mother and sister, the princess is a gifted singer, and she appeared more than once as actor and dancer at the dramatic entertainments arranged during the yearly visits of the late King and Queen Alexandra to Chatsworth.

Her jewels are chiefly pearls, and she owns a wondrous rope of these, seven yards long, and said to be one of the most beautiful necklaces in Europe.

Tons of Rubber From Old Tires.

There is one source of supply of rubber that crude rubber men are likely to overlook, yet one that will wonderfully help in case of a short crop or too high a range of prices on the Amazon.

The world, not the tropical world, but the temperate zone, possesses several million pounds of Para rubber that will shortly be offered to the trade at from 50 to 70 cents a pound. There will be a steady offering of it for years to come and the supply will increase.

Its source is the worn out motor tires that go to the recycler and is thoroughly "recovered." For five years past the tire manufacturers have been turning out tons of raw material. This great accumulation of rubber is just beginning to come back and is of a grade that can be used in almost any line of work. Those who valorize must reckon with this great invisible supply as well as with the visible.—India Rubber World.

THE BOY'S BEAUTY.

As a rule, he is not a thing of beauty, nor a joy forever—not yet. The "irrepressible conflict," of which we have read and said so much, is the conflict between his desire to look well and his disinclination to use the measures that will insure good looks. If anything will. A presentable appearance is impossible without cleanliness, and, from that standpoint, boys drop into three classes. First are the few, the precious few, who like to use soap and water and scrubbing implements, on ordinary as well as on state occasions, and the latter means Saturday nights; but it must be conceded that this is an almost invisible, rather than invincible company of "Knights of the Bath."

This second group stands out in contrast with a certain group of Illinois statesmen, in that they must have high pressure inducements to avail themselves of special bath room facilities. This third is the great middle class of boys who, with more or less reluctance, will co-operate in the care of their persons. It will be different later on, but they will no longer be boys. Meantime, the boy's face, hands, finger nails, neck and ears are negligible quantities, as in the case of the boy who was sent away from the table to clean up and came back with very little improvement, but vindicated himself with the claim that he had washed all right, but did not think it necessary to go into details. There is a time when almost any little boy is pretty, when cleaned up and dressed tastefully. He enjoys being told he is pretty, but has no more respect for his looks than to wallow in a mud puddle, if he is not watched. "Wash and play"—no, not exactly.

Then there comes a time when, even with the best of clothes, it is hard to secure the co-operation of his looks in making a desirable impression. He would like to be graceful, but is loath to be a point he is likely to swing around and knock down a lamp, a vase and valuable bric-a-brac before he reaches his destination. His hair won't stay combed, not even parted. He wears out his pants just where you don't want him to wear them out. When he smiles, it is not just like Gladstone's smile, which Joseph Parker described as like sunshine breaking over a crag. But he looks as if he were trying to work up some fresh cuticle that had grown on his face since the day before, and if he succeeds in working it all up into a smile he does not know what to do with it—he looks as if he would like to swallow the thing. But it is a fetching smile and makes a permanent impression on you. You are apt to wake up in the night singing; "His bright smile haunts me still." His hands know no repose. His voice is liable any minute to go clean out of sight, as a tenor, and the next minute to go rumbling down in the bowels of the earth as a bass. He can croak like a frog, chirp like a cricket and sing like an angel, all in the same breath. It is the awkward age and is incurable—until he ceases to be a boy. His framework is thrown up like a modern skyscraper, and he crouches up on it and takes possession of one story at a time, getting acquainted with that part of himself, gradually and suspiciously.

It is a paradox, but still true, that he is at his most fascinating and forbidding period at one and the same time, and his looks betray him, in both respects. Conceit and humiliation, love and dislike are struggling within him.

There is a moral value in his looks, because they react on his disposition and tendencies; and they affect his relations with people whether that is desirable or not. It is at the awkward age he is apt to become very conscious of the presence and attractions of the opposite sex. Then looks begin to count. Abolitions become a pleasure. He shines the heels of his shoes, washes every convolution in his ears and goes behind them, and he learns the decorative value of clothes. His looks affect his feelings and therefore his conduct. Any patch on his clothes in front distresses him and the thought that there may be one on the other side of him, which he cannot see, while others can, tortures him. His features must remain as nature made them, but they may be helped out with cleanliness and clothes and appropriate decorations and the right kind of foods and scientific physical culture, all those same features will reshape themselves and assume manly beauty, especially when there is a noble and beautiful soul residing in the body and using it for the highest purpose.

Culture in good looks is one of the rights of a boy, in order to overcome present disadvantages and equip him with power for future use; and it can be carried on only with his co-operation. But therein lies his peril. His vanity is such a curious thing, it may deceive him with conceit and torture him with dissatisfaction. To work for good looks, as an asset, is not bad, but perilous. He will need both advice and example, but the advice must come in an incidental way.

When he learns the uses of that sacred mystery, the body, he has learned some of the deep lessons of life; and when he finds that his inner spirit is the essential thing in the art of good looks, he will know how to cultivate physical impressiveness, without peril.

DEMAND FOR "TONA VITA" GROWS IN MILWAUKEE

Those Who Have Tested and Endorsed
This New Tonic Are Inducing
Others to Try Its Wonderful Qualities.

The people of Milwaukee are rapidly awakening to a full appreciation of "Tona Vita," the new tonic now being introduced here. Statements by Milwaukeeans who have tested the preparation are of an extremely favorable character and the demand is growing steadily larger.

F. J. Develin of 637 Jefferson street, Milwaukee, in discussing the value of the new tonic said: "I have been sick for several years. The doctors could not help me. I tried all kinds of medicine without relief. I suffered principally with stomach trouble and nervousness."

"I slept poorly and my sleep did me very little good. I felt very tired most of the time and never was well a moment, but I was always nervous and dependent. I seldom had a good appetite and whenever I did eat I felt bloated from gas and would taste the food for hours."

"About a week ago I got some 'Tona Vita' and have taken it regularly since. From the very beginning I felt the beneficial effects of this new medicine and I now feel, for the first time in several years, like a well man. I now seem to get nourishment from my food and no longer have stomach trouble or feel tired and depressed."

"Tona Vita" has done me lots of good."

A similar preparation to "Tona Vita" has been a great success in Europe, but the tonic is just being introduced in the United States. Physicians are explaining the nature of the medicine to the public in Milwaukee. These physicians claim that a large percentage of the people are afflicted with nervous debility. One of the physicians in this connection said: "The symptoms of nervous debility are unmistakable to those who know how prevalent this trouble is. A tired, dragging feeling of the body, a sluggish mind and dull memory, depression of spirits, nervousness, stomach trouble, weak back, cold feet, headaches and bowel trouble are sure indications of nervous debility, and modern life produces it in untold thousands."

"Tona Vita" will positively remove this condition. It is going to establish the people of this country, as it is actually worth its weight in gold to a man or woman afflicted with nervous debility."

Leon Huthardt Laxative, the most active preparation, is the best family laxative in the world. The natural medicinal qualities of rhubarb—nature's purest and best laxative—are obtained in this medicine. Leon Huthardt Laxative will not harm the weakest constitution and is therefore ideal for children. It is very pleasant to the taste. The Smith Drug Co. has secured the agency in Janesville for these celebrated preparations.

GIVEN FIVE YEARS IN STATE PRISON

E. R. Applin, Horse Thief Pleaded Guilty and Was Sentenced in Municipal Court Today.

E. R. Applin, horse thief, was sentenced to five years in the state prison at Waupun by Municipal Judge C. L. Fildes this morning for the theft of two horses and a light wagon from the M. Goodman livery last Thursday. Applin was arraigned yesterday and waived the right of hearing and his hearing was set for Monday morning. He desired immediate sentence, however, and this morning a petition signed by him, waiving the right of trial and asking to be allowed to plead to the charge was filed. The complaint was filed by District Attorney Stanley Danowski, and the judge asked the prisoner if there was any reason why sentence should not be passed. Applin answered that he had nothing to say except that he had been drinking heavily for the past two months and his mental faculties were dulled at the time he committed the act. He asked the judge to consider this in passing sentence. Applin admitted to the court that he had been previously convicted, outside the state, for a similar offense and said that the conditions under which the theft was committed were much the same. The law does not definitely fix the penalty of the crime beyond that the sentence may be for a full term or up to fifteen years in the state prison. The court stated that neither the maximum nor the minimum penalty would be imposed, but taking into consideration the fact that Applin had been previously convicted for horse stealing, although outside the state, the penalty should be more severe than a full sentence. Applin seemed to take the sentence calmly, said nothing, and showed little or no emotion. He was taken from the court to the county jail by Sheriff Ransom and the sheriff and his prisoner started for the penitentiary this noon.

Applin is 45 years old and has a wife and two children living at Algonquin, Ill.

OPENED BIDS FOR THE SEWER WORK

Street Assessment Committee Met Today To Consider Bids of Contractors For Construction of Sewers This Afternoon.

Bids for the work on the construction of sewers in the city during the year were opened by the street assessment committee, comprising the mayor, city engineer and several of the aldermen, at the city hall at two o'clock this afternoon. Nine companies of individual contractors filed bids for the work with three checks for the amount required as a guarantee of good faith, bids being submitted for the work in such separate districts where it is planned to put in the sewers. The work is to be done in Districts No. 3, 4, 11, 14, 15 and 16 and in all will extend about three miles.

Up until half past three o'clock this afternoon the bids had not been checked over and it was not known whom the committee would recommend to receive the contract, but it was thought that the They Bros. of Dubuque, Ia., had submitted the lowest bid. The other bidders were the Thill-Manning-Whelan Company of La Crosse; the Gund-Graham Company of Watertown, Wis.; S. E. Kohnke, Racine; Thomas E. Wootley, LaCrosse; Sweeney Bros. Reedburg, Wis.; Mulholland and Kohn Construction Co., Kaukauna, Wis.; Richard W. Forrester, Milwaukee.

PICKPOCKETS BUSY AT LOCAL DEPOTS

One Janesville Man Relieved of $30 and Several Strangers in City Had Pocketbooks Stolen Yesterday.

Pickpockets, followers of the circus, were busy in Janesville yesterday about the passenger depots of both stations, jostling in the crowds that stood waiting for trains to come or go, and without doubt making a clean haul. Among the number was Rev. Walter A. Hall, pastor of the Methodist church of Wood Lake, Rev. Hall was hurrying to the noon train to Fond du Lac. He was carrying his coat on his arm on account of the heat, exposing to view two large purses in his large pockets. In one of these there was a large sum of money, the other contained only a small amount of cash. He was jostled as he walked along and later found he had been robbed. The thief, however, made a poor choice, selecting the pocketbook containing the small change.

An elderly gentleman from a White water was relieved of $7 in a bold manner by a "choc." The purse thief, who was standing near the Whites water depot, reached into an outside pocket and easily removed the seven dollars which had been placed there by the victim. Some time after the theft occurred Officer Dalton was notified, but no trace of the thief could be found.

William Poeschen, of the city, who was selected by the local order of Eagles as a delegate to the state convention at Marshfield, had $86 taken in the crowd at the St. Paul depot last evening just as he was taking the train to Marshfield. Poeschen had the money in a purse in a rear pocket of his trousers. Seven other persons from out of town were relieved of various sums of money, ranging from fifty to one hundred dollars each. Visitors in the city from Lima also contributed toward the enrichment of the pickpockets.

The work of the collectors for the Subscription Department to "The Gazette" can be very greatly assisted if the patrons of the paper will have their payments ready at the time the collector calls. LONDON IN FESTIVE GARB FOR CEREMONY which express loyalty and good wishes to the sovereign, and around the massive pillars and over the roof and walls, strings of electric light globes, of every color of the rainbow, have been strung.

Buildings Decorated.

The Royal Exchange and the Mansion House, the two other world-famed buildings which face the Bank, have been treated in a similar manner and the occupiers of the less stately but almost as important financial institutions in the immediate neighborhood, have carried the plan still further, so that a great glare of light will descend from the center of the financial world when the King is crowned.

All the great thoroughfares and many of the side streets will be brighter than ever before. Crowds and the influx of the King and Queen are generally favored by the dealers, which are supported by others of every form and size. The clubs and big business houses naturally lead in illuminating, but many private residences make a brave display. Dorchester House, the residence of Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, standing as it does in the center of Park Lane, makes a mark distinguishable for several miles up Hyde Park.

The home of the American ambassador, so often described as the handsomest in London, will be outlined in light, thousands of electric globes having been placed about the cornices, windows and columns. The center of the scheme, however, is an immense shield, across which have been draped the American and British flags in red, white and blue lights. This covers the corner of the house facing Hyde Park. On the front and sides are eagles and shields, bearing the Stars and Stripes and the initials "G. R." and "M." When the electricity is turned on, Dorchester House will be blazoned in light, and through the trees of the Park will afford one of the grandest sights of the coronation illumination.

The embassy offices in Victoria street do not lend themselves so well to illumination, but they stand out as a bright spot, even amongst the offices of the colonial governments and dominions by which they are surrounded. The center piece is an immense crown, in varied colored lights, on either side of which are the Stars and Stripes, and the initials "G. R." and "M."

Mr. Burdett-Coutts, M. P., whose residence, Stratton House, Piccadilly, is occupied by Mr. John Hays Hammond, the special American Ambassador to the coronation, has undertaken the decoration and illumination of the house. The design he has chosen remains a secret between himself and the decorator, but the strings of electric wires already in place show that a very elaborate scheme is to mark the temporary home of the special American ambassador.

NEARLY A THOUSAND RECEIVED DIPLOMAS

to history; and Marx Hirsch, Madison, Ind. law.

The science medal of the Science club of the university was awarded to Harmon Lewis of Oak Park, Ill.

The honorary degree of doctor of letters was conferred upon Dr. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago; and Dr. George Santayana of Harvard University. The honorary degree of doctor of science was conferred upon George Henry Benzenberg of Milwaukee.

"That passion, suspicion, impugning of motives, imperfect knowledge, weak understanding, make men unable correctly to judge one another, and that the young man is likely to be harsh in his judgments as to the ideas of others and ready to believe that the motives of those different from him are bad—all of which interfere with the highest usefulness of men and women in the affairs of life and calls for the exercising of more charity in judging others, was the substance of the commencement address by Dr. Charles Richard Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, speaking on "Government and Charity" at the 56th commencement exercises of the institution today.

"Judge Not."

"One must remember," said President Van Hise, "that among the same people there is a wide variation of beliefs, methods, and early training, which shape the child as he is shaped the skill of the flathead Indian."

"Since of necessity one's ideas and ideals are so largely a function of his environment, one needs to use the widest knowledge and most sympathetic appreciation in judging of the actions and purposes of others."

"For one who would go to a high place there is nothing more necessary and nothing more difficult than capacity to deal with his fellowmen in a fair, reasonable and charitable way; for this involves capacity to appreciate his point of view. Intolerance, passion, prejudice, impugning of motives should all be eliminated."

Should Credit Men With Good Motives.

"To credit a man with good motives is a long step towards judging him with charity," declares President Van Hise. "The very fact that a man is met on a high plane is a potent factor in his living up to that plane. It is, indeed, a bias man who, dealt with generously, broadly, openly, fairly, takes advantage of these qualities. It may be that sometimes one will be betrayed because of his confidence in his fellowmen; but his occasional sufferings because of this are not likely to be nearly so serious as they are if he starts in the hypothesis that the men with whom he comes into relations are untrustworthy."

"In suggesting that other men shall be credited with honesty, and their views respected, there is no thought of intimating that one should not adhere strongly to his own convictions; but that he should consider separately the man and his ideas."

"Most subjects with reference to which men differ are so complex that no one can be sure that he has the whole truth in reference to any of them. Indeed, there is no such thing as perfection of knowledge and judgment with reference to anything. Because of this the wise man is forever looking for additional ideas to modify, to shape his judgment with reference to anything. He is forever looking for the wheat and ignoring the chaff; thus he ever works towards perfection. Perfection he never will reach, but by steadily adding to his store through many years, he will gain such knowledge of people, such judgment in applying his knowledge as to make him a wise man. Wisdom is not inherited; it is not acquired suddenly; it is the fruit of intellectual capacity, unending toil, earnest seeking for truth, adding clarity."

Self Government at Wisconsin.

In speaking of the development of the idea of self-government at the University of Wisconsin and how useful it is to exercise authority in all affairs of government whether they be national or centered in a body like the university, President Van Hise said: "The mighty problem of self-government within the nation has been an important factor in leading me to encourage student self-government in this institution; for it is my conviction that if the several thousands of students in the university can wisely govern themselves this will be the best possible training for participation in the great governmental problem of the race."

"The movement for self-government in the university started some seven years ago in a small way, has grown slowly until the students now have large responsibility. The men's conference committee and the women's self-government association have developed, which have powers of legislation concerning student affairs similar to those of the legislature of a state. Student courts have been formed which have the responsibility of recommending penalties for violations of legislation."

"This condition of affairs has obtained for only about a year, yet before the end of that year, in consequence of dissatisfaction, we find the men's student court under investigation by the legislative assembly. Thus we have reached the first crucial stage in the development of self-government in the university, a stage which has been reached in every nation whenever responsibility and power have been assumed by the people or their representatives."

tion are untrustworthy.

"In suggesting that other men shall be credited with honesty, and their views respected, there is no thought of intimating that one should not adhere strongly to his own convictions; but that he should consider separately the man and his ideas."

"Most subjects with reference to which men differ are so complex that no one can be sure that he has the whole truth in reference to any of them. Indeed, there is no such thing as perfection of knowledge and judgment with reference to anything. Because of this the wise man is forever looking for additional ideas to modify, to shape his judgment with reference to anything. He is forever looking for the wheat and ignoring the chaff; thus he ever works towards perfection. Perfection he never will reach, but by steadily adding to his store through many years, he will gain such knowledge of people, such judgment in applying his knowledge as to make him a wise man. Wisdom is not inherited; it is not acquired suddenly; it is the fruit of intellectual capacity, unending toil, earnest seeking for truth, adding clarity."

Self Government at Wisconsin.

In speaking of the development of the idea of self-government at the University of Wisconsin and how useful it is to exercise authority in all affairs of government whether they be national or centered in a body like the university, President Van Hise said: "The mighty problem of self-government within the nation has been an important factor in leading me to encourage student self-government in this institution; for it is my conviction that if the several thousands of students in the university can wisely govern themselves this will be the best possible training for participation in the great governmental problem of the race."

"The movement for self-government in the university started some seven years ago in a small way, has grown slowly until the students now have large responsibility. The men's conference committee and the women's self-government association have developed, which have powers of legislation concerning student affairs similar to those of the legislature of a state. Student courts have been formed which have the responsibility of recommending penalties for violations of legislation."

"This condition of affairs has obtained for only about a year, yet before the end of that year, in consequence of dissatisfaction, we find the men's student court under investigation by the legislative assembly. Thus we have reached the first crucial stage in the development of self-government in the university, a stage which has been reached in every nation whenever responsibility and power have been assumed by the people or their representatives."

Everyman's Car

The Brush Runabout

$450

The Brush Recognizes No Competition

WATCH FOR IT, it sounds like two, works like four, and makes good every time.

The dependability of the Brush has enabled it to hold the regard of the users as few cars do. Its simplicity makes it possible for a child to drive it. Its durability and adaptability to a hundred uses, more than its economy and low costs, have made it known as EVERYMAN'S CAR.

It is not an imitation nor an adaptation of any other automobile, all other low priced cars are. Many of them are mighty good pieces of machinery but they have all the complicated parts of their big brothers.

In the BRUSH you will find a car so simple in design that all the parts can be made strong enough to stand as rough usage as any automobile in existence.

You will find the best of materials, each piece selected for the function it has to perform. You will find the workmanship on the vital parts—the parts that mean the success or failure of an automobile—to be as good as on cars selling for ten times as much.

Naturally you will not find as much show, as much polish; but show and polish will not make the car run and that's what interests the man who wants a car to use.

Don't understand by this that the car isn't well finished. In this respect it compares favorably with the high priced cars, but we want to impress upon you especially the care we take with the parts that make the wheels go around.

When you are examining the Brush, notice how simple is the control mechanism and how easily the car is operated.

Please remember the Brush is the only car that is different from all others and still a proven success.

And best of all is the PRICE which is within the reach of all, namely, $450.00.

LET US GIVE YOU A RIDE.

Mexicans Celebrate Diaz Victory.

City of Mexico, June 21.—Elaborate precautions were taken by the Provisional government to prevent any disorderly demonstrations today on the occasion of the anniversary celebrations in memory of the taking of the City of Mexico by the forces of Gen. Diaz, June 21, 1910. For many years the anniversary has been observed as a holiday in the capital. The fall of the City of Mexico to the Liberal troops under Gen. Diaz marked the last blow to the Imperialists and practically ended the long war of the Napoleonic invasion.

GET AT THE CAUSE QUICK

NORMAL SPINE.

The Chiropractor does not ask forty different questions to find out what is the matter with your Stomach, or if you have Stomach Trouble. The average M. D. expert Specialist and Surgeon will put all sorts of questions to you and will go at you something like this: "Do you have pain in your stomach? Loss of appetite? Dyspepsia? Indigestion? Bad taste or breath? Sick headache? Bloating? Heartburn? Sour Stomach? Belching? Spitting? Catarrh? Gas? Gnawing? Nervousness?" Now what more would the doctor want to know to decide that you had Stomach Trouble? Anyone could tell they had Stomach Trouble, if they knew they had all this, but still people will wonder how the Great Specialist can tell that a person has Stomach Trouble. Why, in a round about way, HE HAS ASKED YOU ALL ABOUT YOUR STOMACH AND YOU HAVE TOLD HIM YOURSELF WHAT YOUR TROUBLES ARE. NOW NOTICE THE DIFFERENCE IN THE CHIROPRACTORS—WE NEVER ASK SYMPTOMS. The Chiropractors locate the cause of your trouble in your spine. Each vertebra is separated by a cartilage between the vertebrae a nerve passes. The Cartilage becoming crushed through accident, fall, heavy lifting, etc. It may have happened to you some years ago, but is bound to show up sooner or later and then you get your pain and trouble. We remove the cause of nerve pressure and Nature will then restore you to perfect health.

Illustration No. 1.—You will notice that the 5th and 6th Dorsal Vertebrae are out of line with the other ones. These are throwing a pressure on the nerves leading to the Stomach and shutting off the mental current which is Life, from the Brain to the Stomach and the result is you have Stomach Trouble.

All you need to do is to go to the Chiropractors—they understand how to adjust the subluxation of the spine. It is the height of folly to continue in pain when there are Chiropractors in your home town.

You who are sick and discouraged, did you read our Chiropractic Illustrated talk in this paper, page 8, last Saturday? It means much to you

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

DEAR me! It just makes me feel wicked to be going off into the country to enjoy myself while so many people have to stay all summer cooped up in miserable little flats and tenements in the hot city.

A very generous thought, that, isn't it?

No wonder the lady to remember her less fortunate brothers and sisters right in the midst of her own happiness.

That's what I thought—at first. Then I wondered. For the lady was going away for two months. During that time her home in the suburbs will be closed up—of no use to anyone. To many of the people whose misfortune in having to stay in the hot city through the summer months touched the lady's heart so deeply, that home would have been almost a paradise. For it is a large, comfortable house, with spacious high-ceilinged rooms and a big garden filled with flowers and shrubs and fruit trees, and a delightful wide veranda.

Think what it would mean to some family cooped up in a little flat with no piazza and not even a foot of ground to plant a single flower in—beg your pardon, I'm exaggerating; I forgot those two flower boxes that are blossoming as the rose with mother's nasturtium seeds bought with the rag money—think what it would mean to such people to spend the two hottest summer months in that beautiful suburban home.

What's that I hear? You don't blame the woman a bit for not wanting strange people to come into her nice home and break up her furniture like us not. You wouldn't want that yourself.

No, neither would I.

But why strange people? I happen to know that right in that woman's Church there is a very nice family who, having intervention of Providence or one of its agents, will spend the summer in a little live-room flat on the third story in one of the least pleasant streets in town, and who, given the chance, would respect this woman's household goods as their own—no, more, for I know they are the kind of people who would risk anything borrowed a little better than their own.

She would risk nothing in loaning the house to them and the happiness she would give—well, why belittle it by measure or comparison?

Perhaps she doesn't know about these people?

No, perhaps not.

Perhaps the five other families in our neighborhood who closed their pleasant homes for one or two months last summer, could not possibly have found through any agency some desirable family to enjoy them.

But I wonder if the Great Accountant when He's making up the debit column of the good we might have done will think they couldn't.

The KITCHEN CABINET

BETTER a cheap coffin and a plain funeral, after a useful, unselfish life, than a grand procession and a marble mausoleum after a loveless, selfish life.

DON'TS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

Don't use a good broom to scrub with when a poor one will do as well.

Don't open half a dozen cans of fruit and leave parts of each to spoil.

Don't forget to pick up the clothespins that have fallen to the ground.

Don't leave corks and stoppers out of bottles.

Don't forget to wipe the boiler before hanging it away, or put any utensils away without thoroughly drying them.

Don't leave the table linen with its stains to go into the tubs.

Don't throw away paper bags and wrapping paper; they are often very useful.

Don't use silver knives and spoons in the kitchen.

Don't let soap suds in dish water or the scrub pail to waste.

Don't use dish towels for pot holders or napkins for dish towels.

Don't cut more bread or cake than is necessary, to dry and be wasted.

Hall and keep all crumbs. Those of cake may be used in steamed brown bread.

Don't use good sheets on the ironing board.

Don't leave the broom standing on the broom and; hang them or stand upside down.

Don't burn the heater with all the draughts carrying the heat up the chimney.

Don't leave a little gasoline or oil in the can each time it goes to be filled. It is the little leaks which sink a great ship.

Uses for Sand Paper.

When the pane and line become rough, use a little sandpaper to smooth them.

Sometimes the handle of a broom is rough; a few strokes of sandpaper will remedy the difficulty.

Use sandpaper to scrape a burned kettle and save fingers and utensil.

Sandpaper is a good polish for iron.

EGGS FOR THE INVALID.

Eggs should be cooked little.

If at all. Albumen is coagulated at 160 F., becoming largely unassimilable and the mineral elements in the yolk are precipitated and largely changed, as the action of boiled eggs on a silver spoon indicates. The best preparation for the egg, especially for the invalid, is poaching slightly or whipping. Stir thoroughly with a Dover eggbeater in a round-bottomed bowl, after adding the juice of an orange and eat from the bowl without allowing it to settle, or cover the eggs with cold water in a vessel, raise the temperature slowly to 155 F. (uncomfortable to the touch), and set aside for fifteen minutes.

TALK TO HOUSE-KEEPERS

"Cucumbers are cold in the third degree."—Swift.

(By Nellie L. Horn.)

The cucumber is one of the oldest known vegetables. Originally of Asiatic origin, it has been cultivated since the very earliest times, and though it contains little nutriment and is practically indigestible when eaten raw, it has remained a favorite down through all the ages. In fact, it has few rivals in salads or as a pickle. Much of the "concentrated cold" which they seem to contain for most people may be extracted by proper treatment. Cut off both ends of the cucumbers to the seeds, but do not pare or slice. Let it lie in salt water for an hour or two, then drain, pare, slice thinly, and serve with salt, pepper, vinegar and oil. The oil may be omitted if desired.

It is a great addition to all vegetable and egg salads, both as a garnish and for its flavor. A simple, but pretty and effective salad is made by quartering a ripe tomato down from the top to the stem end without cutting through, so that it will open up like a flower. Place cubes of cucumber between the petals, and a big spoonful of mayonnaise dressing in the center. Serve on a lettuce leaf.

For housewives know that cucumbers may be cooked, and those whose digestion will not permit them to eat the raw ones will find them pleasing and wholesome.

An unusually light and savory soup may be made by combining them with white onions. Pare and slice three good sized cucumbers, and put in a sauce pan with one white onion, sliced, and a tablespoon of butter. Cover and cook for ten minutes, shaking the pan frequently to keep the slices from browning. Then add a pint of boiling water and simmer until soft. Scald a pint of milk, and add a tablespoon of flour smoothly blended with a tablespoon of melted butter; stir till it thickens. Rub the cucumbers through a sieve, and add to the milk. Season with salt and pepper, return to the stove for ten minutes, and serve with crisp crackers.

Stewed cucumbers also make a pleasing variety. For this have equal quantities of sliced cucumbers and onions. Flour them well, and fry them slowly in butter or drippings. When they are nicely browned put to one side and add enough flour to the fat in the pan to absorb it. Then slowly add half a pint of boiling water or gravy, and stir until thickened. Simmer slowly for half an hour, and just before serving add a spoonful of walnut catsup.

There are few dishes more delicately flavored or more highly appetizing than fried cucumbers. Pare them, cut in slices about a quarter of an inch thick, and let them lie in cold water for an hour. Then drain and dry with a cloth; dip the slices in beaten egg, then in cracker crumbs, and fry a delicate brown in deep, smoking hot fat.

If the housewives whose families complain of the lack of variety in vegetables will try some of these recipes, they will be delighted to find that they have practically "discovered" a new vegetable.

NEW CONTEST FOR WOMEN.

You are not confined to a salad, even hot dishes are enjoyed when tastefully prepared. The contest closes the first day of July, so be sure and have your recipe ready by that time.

SHADOW WREATH FOR FRONT OF CHEMISE

This is a charming pattern for the front of a chemise or slip-over corset cover. The dots in the centers of the flowers are worked on the right side of the material in the solid satin stitch. The flowers and leaves are done in a close fagoting stitch on

Heart and Home Talks

Simple Talks on Health.

The First Wealth.

EVEN a man so concerned with great philosophical abstractions as Emerson, got down to brass tacks when he said, "The first wealth is health." Yet this is a wealth few people consider until they lose it. They do not value it at all for the treasure it is.

With health, what may a man not do; without it, what can he do? With health, the world is before him; without health, it passes him by.

The one who should try to properly realize the value of the wealth he has and to do what he can to preserve it, is the man or woman with health. The one who has lost his health is usually making all efforts possible to regain it. But the one who has overflowing health squanders it recklessly.

Obedience to a few simple laws will enable one to keep his health. But the one who is healthy, usually recklessly breaks all these laws, and keeps on breaking them until the consequences are upon him. He smokes too much, and so affects his heart. He eats wrongly, and so upsets his digestion. He takes no exercise and gets little fresh air, and so vitiates his blood. He seems to think there will be a special dispensation of providence for him, and he will escape all these ills. But he won't. As sure as the years follow upon the years, he will in course of time reap the harvest of ill health he has been sowing. And all the business success he may have gathered, perhaps by this very neglect of his health, will be of no value to him. The first wealth is health.

These warnings are everywhere, yet men and women go serenely on to the fate that is waiting them by the roadside. They overwork, over-rush, and over-worry, and nervous prostration taps them on the shoulder and says, "Come with me." They eat and drink improperly, and Bright's disease drops into step with them, and henceforth is their companion. They consume innumerable cigarettes, and heart failure shadows them. It would be a comedy, this way we live, were it not a tragedy.

Some of us like to stick mottees up on the walls of our room, or our office, or upon our desk. A good one to place where it will stare us right in the face is, "The first wealth is health."

MOTHER'S CORNER

By JULIA CHANDLER.

"All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my Mother."
—Abraham Lincoln.

THE OTHER day when Baby Anne was taken with convulsions I wanted to send for you," said the mother of Baby Anne to me, while the baby in question frothed in her arms.

"Why don't you help mothers more in physical emergencies?" Your Mother's Corner gives you splendid chance. Right this minute I feel as cross as a bear, and I haven't the least idea what Baby Anne is fretting about, unless it is the hot weather," she went on.

Following my suggestion, she addressed the peevish child. I was not surprised to find all parts of the little body covered with clothing attacked by prickly heat, a skin affection which causes a tingling and itching sufficiently severe to make a grown person shudder. The rash consists of red papules, each about the size of a pin's head. These small bumps thrust themselves up through the skin, sometimes in patches as large as the hand, sometimes covering the body.

The usual primary cause of this rash is heat. Upon some skins it appears with the first hot spell. Upon others several hot waves are required to bring it out.

In the case of Baby Anne, a flannel shirt was greatly aggravating the irritation. Only a fine cotton or linen garment should be worn next to the skin. No flannel should be allowed to touch the rash.

"But," objected the baby's mother, "I thought babies should wear flannel next to their skin all summer."

"The torturous rash upon your baby's skin is sufficient evidence that you were wrong," I suggested.

We gave Baby Anne a tepid bath, keeping her in the water only three minutes. To the tub of water we added a heaping tablespoonful of baking soda to allay the irritation.

Where a case of prickly heat is severe the eruption should be bathed with equal parts of alcohol and water. Another remedy which is very healing and soothing—as well as simple—is an infusion of bran and water. A cupful of bran to a pint of warm water. This should stand for an hour, when it should be strained, after which it is ready to be applied to the baby's body.

Whether baby has prickly heat or not, he should be given a tepid bath morning and night during the hot weather—never being in the water over two or three minutes. Not a cold bath, however. It is a mistake to suppose that cold water will cool. It is stimulating to the blood and will produce an afterglow of warmth which will prove most uncomfortable in hot weather.

The food of the children should be given extra surveillance in the summer, particularly where there are cases of prickly heat, or children whose skins incline to rashes of any kind. Outmeal should be stopped during the hot weather, as well as all other foods which are heating to the blood and irritating to the skin.

I saw the mother of Baby Anne a few days after she began the tepid bath and the elimination of flannel vests from her baby's wardrobe.

"The rash has just about disappeared, and Anne is like a new baby," she told me.

COMPANY B. TO MARCH FROM FORT ATKINSON

CAPTAIN GARLOCK'S MEN TO LEAVE HOME ON SUNDAY AND CAMP ALONG THE ROAD.

OFFICIAL ORDER ISSUED

Adjutant General Issues Official Orders For the Men to Come to Janesville.

When Company B of Ft. Atkinson arrives in Janesville on the afternoon of July 2, it will have completed a march from its home city to Janesville following the route taken during the Black Hawk war by the government troops, under command of General Atkinson who commanded in the United States troops in that famous war against the Chippewa Black Hawk.

Captain Garlock writes that his men prefer to march to coming on the special train reserved for them, will tramp through the country just as if on actual war duty, each man carrying his blanket, roll, camp equipment and pack of his shelter tent and that they will camp on Sunday night by the road and reach Janesville sometime Monday morning.

This is realistic in the extreme and means an added feature to the celebration. The Ft. Atkinson company will go into camp in Spring Brook as will the Whitewater company that arrives by train later in the day and Company L of Beloit which comes up by Interurban. Company H of Monroe comes in by still a later train Monday or early Tuesday morning and with the Milwaukee companies will take part in the big parade and sham battle Tuesday.

Not only are the people in the vicinity of Janesville interested in the coming maneuvers of troops but the following special order No. 68 from the Adjutant General's office under the date of June 20th shows that the state authorities are also working with the local committee to make the affair a success.

The following is the order: "Permission is hereby granted to the commanding officers of Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and the Adjutant General's office under the date of June 20th shows that the state authorities are also working with the local committee to make the affair a success.

By order of the Governor, C. L. HOADMAN, Adjutant General, Chief of Staff, JNO. G. KALSBAM, Adjutant General.

This assures the appearance of the troops here on the three days and a letter from the Quartermaster of the Fifth Field Artillery U. S. A., asking for quotation on 7,100 pounds of hay, 5,000 pounds of oats, two cords of hard wood, 500 pounds of meat and 450 pounds of bread, show that the regulars will be on scheduled time July 2 for their three days' stay.

It promises to be the biggest military demonstration that Janesville has ever seen. The arrival of the troops Monday with band concerts, parades by the regular mounted band and street illuminations and general carnival will prove the opening card to the biggest program ever undertaken in the city.

For the baseball fans there is the game at the Fair Grounds in the afternoon between Monroe and Stoughton, old rivals and both first class teams. Tuesday morning Fortville and Evansville cross bats at Athletic park, a second good game and Wednesday afternoon Monroe and Stoughton are again to be found at the Fair Grounds. Three fast games on the three days.

The sale of concessions for the streets has not been let and Mr. Hudde, who has it in charge will arrive in Janesville Friday and be at the headquarters from that date on until after the last spooler ends his talk Wednesday night. D. W. Watt, who has charge of the Fair Grounds and gates at the sham battle announces he will open his advance ticket sale on Saturday before the Fourth at Headquarters and urges all who can to buy the tickets then to avoid the rush at the gates on the afternoon of July Fourth.

UNIQUE. "She is the most original woman I ever knew." "How is that?" "When she hasn't anything to say she doesn't talk."

A Clue. "The girl in that chorus is a scream." "The one who led the college yell?"

NUPTIAL CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED AT CHURCH LAST NIGHT

Miss Mary Beaton and Henry Stow Lovejoy United in Marriage at Congregational Church.

At the Congregational church last evening occurred the wedding of Miss Mary F. Beaton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Beaton, and Henry Stow Lovejoy, youngest son of Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy. The church was decorated most beautifully in green and white with boughs of oak leaves, palms and ferns, banded in front of the choir loft and white lilies and peonies on the marriage altar.

While the people were being seated in the church auditorium the choral union of the Congregational church sang the "Bridal Chorus" from the Rose Maiden. Mrs. Zoo Pearl Parks sang in most beautiful tones and with perfect expression "O Perfect Love" by H. T. Burleigh. It was one of the finest solo renditions ever heard in Janesville and Mrs. Park's charming voice was at its best.

Miss Pond played an organ solo and following it the voices of the Junior choir of the church, composed of twenty-two young girls, were heard at the church entrance. They advanced down the right aisle carrying a chain of daisies and greens, singing the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin.

The ushers, six young men, intimate friends of the contracting parties, preceded the bride party. Miss Julia Lovejoy, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and was followed by the bride on the arm of her father. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Alvan P. Lovejoy. The party advanced and took their places on the platform.

The simple ring ceremony was read by Dr. Beaton and his benediction and blessing ended the simple but impressive marriage service. The bride party left the church down the left aisle to the strains of organ music.

The gowns of the ladies of the bride party were most beautiful. The bride was attired in a white satin gown with a white chiffon tulle trimmed with pearls. She wore a white tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Julia Lovejoy, maid of honor, was attired in white embroidered marquisette over white satin and carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Beaton, mother of the bride, wore a gown of lavender chiffon over lavender satin, and Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, mother of the groom, was attired in white chiffon over green satin.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home for the bride party, consisting of the families and immediate friends of the bride and groom. A wedding supper was also served, ending the evening's festivities. Mr. and Mrs. Lovejoy will make their home in this city after an extended wedding journey.

THREATENS TO SUE CITY FOR DAMAGES

City Attorney Will Endeavor to Settle Case Which Mrs. Julius Lentz Threatens to Bring Against City.

City Attorney H. L. Maxwell began investigation today in regard to the accident which befall Mrs. Julius Lentz a week ago today. Mrs. Lentz, residing at 416 Western Ave., fell at the corner of Western avenue and La Crosse street, breaking her knee-cap. As a result of her accident it is claimed that she will have a stiff joint and be disabled for life.

This morning through her attorney, Mrs. Lentz threatened to sue the city for five hundred dollars damages and the doctor's bill, on the charge of a defective crosswalk. Attorney Maxwell will investigate the condition of this walk today and will thoroughly probe the case. However, he will settle the claim outside of the court if possible and avoid an unnecessary cost of a suit.

MAGNOLIA HOME WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE EARLY THIS MORNING

Flames From Oil Stove Destroyed House on Farm Owned by Mrs. Marie Chase and Occupied by Louie Woodstock.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Calverville Center, June 21.—Fire from an oil stove in the kitchen of the farm home occupied by Louie Woodstock near Magnolia station, spread to the woodwork and the residence burned to the ground between five and six o'clock this morning. The loss was about $2,500.

The fire started while both Mr. and Mrs. Woodstock were away from the house attending to duties outside. When they looked toward the house some minutes after leaving it they discovered smoke and flames leaping from the kitchen window. They hurried to the scene and hastily summoned aid from neighbors. The flames had gained such headway in the dry timbers of the residence that it was impossible to extinguish them with the equipment at hand and only a few household articles were taken from the burning building.

The efforts of the neighbors who came to the aid of the Woodstocks, were directed toward saving the out-buildings, in which they succeeded. The house and farm is owned by Mrs. Marie Chase who resided near Evansville and the loss is estimated at $2,500, covered by $1,000 insurance in the Town of Union company.

The furniture which belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Woodstock was almost a total loss, which will be particularly felt as they had but lately started housekeeping. It was not insured, according to reports received.

HAY PRICES SOAR; CROP TO BE LIGHT

Dated Product Retailers At Local Market At $25 To $26 Per Ton.—Crop Here Will Be Light.

Hay prices in the local market continue to soar and from the present indications of the crop in Rock County they will continue to be at a high mark for the coming year. The crop in the southern part of the state will be exceptionally light, due largely to a lack of rain in the early part of the season and to the severe winter. Lack of moisture last fall also is a factor in the scarcity of the hay crop and has made a decided decrease in the average most of the new seedling having been plowed under for lack of a stand.

Local dealers are retailing old hay baled at $25 to $26 per ton, and state that they would be able to secure more than this if they shipped it to Milwaukee or Chicago. Markets so keen is the demand and so scarce the supply. They have to supply their customers, however, and the country in the vicinity of Janesville, has been nearly cleared of the supply. Various amounts have been shipped in from Afton, Shopshire, Milton, and other nearby points.

Rock county farmers have not been able to furnish all that was necessary, however, and a number of carloads of prairie hay has been shipped in from western states. Farmers have been able to get as high as $22 per ton for loose hay.

In some sections of the country where early rains have fallen as in Northern Wisconsin, the hay crop may be fairly good. The general reports are to the effect that the crop will be light all over the country.
